

From: DCJessen@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/27/02 12:28pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I am a microsoft software consumer. I have never been hurt by their policies. To the contrary, If you want your software to seamless work, then buy microsoft. If you are inclined to want your system to crash, spend hours trying to fix it, and constantly try to get your software to work, then by all means by their competitors bloatware. I believe the Dept of Justice is way out of line here, resorting to blackmail to assist Microsofts competitors, as they is the only way they are real competition. Why don't you ask those lousy policial attourney generals whos software they use? If I was Bill Gates, I would make them return all of mine, and not allow them to use it, then they would get a taste of their competitors junk.

Making software interoperable has been Microsofts strong suit. If their competitors were smart they would have done the same, but elected to try and screw the consumer, albet Lotus 123, Work perfect.. Just standalone junk software. Give it to the State Attourney Generals. Personally I would add a donation to Microsoft if they would develop a fund to defeat all these people in the next elections.

David Jessen